The new action role-playing game introducing unique online elements, "The Elden Ring", will launch on June 4th, 2016 in Japan. "The Elden Ring" is a story of a father and a son, told with a variety of story fragments. The story begins with a boy and his father journeying through the Lands Between, and the boy learns of the Elden Ring, a legendary object blessed by gods and said to be capable of averting the looming doom. Starting with a younger boy who is full of wonder and curiosity, the characters will grow from boy to an Elden Lord. The bond of father and son, the hope of salvation, and the sorrow of tragedy all come together in the Lands Between. Ages: • For the younger player • For the older player * Players that are 13 years of age and above are welcome to play the game Supported Languages: • Japanese * You can learn about our character designs and the original draft of the story here: * This is also the information about the game's official website: * More information at * We are still accepting players through the end of July 2016. In theory this should not be too hard. But I could not find a way to do that in google app engine. I would like to calculate the average distance between two members of a list. What's the easiest way to do that? A: Since this is only a trivial example, I'll just give an approach without using the functions from datastore API. If you need to perform complex calculations on all the data, you might need to look into datastore API. Python If you only need the distance, you can use the Euclidean distance between two points. def

What's new:

THE MASTERS OF THE UNIVERSE: The Covenant is transforming the destruction of the cosmos into a new triumph of science and cosmic discovery. In awe, the mortals of space-time reflect on the unimaginable magnitude of the Covenant's power. Masters of the Universe (MOD) is a PC action/RPG/FPS by Iron Wolf Entertainment. The game features three factions, GANZ, TYRI and YGG.
