This object should serialize a collection of classes which are marked as [Serializable]. In a certain situation there is only one such child class, but in other cases there can be more, so it should be possible to serialize the object. This works as long as every child class implements Serializable, but what if one child class does not? Is there a way to serialize the object in a generic way, as long as one of the classes to be serialized implements Serializable? Note that other information should stay as it is, i.e. only the objects in the collection to be serialized should be serialized. A: Serialize to XML public static String ConvertToXml(T Obj) { StringBuilder sb = new StringBuilder(); sb.Append(DataContractSerializer.WriteObject( Obj, new XmlWriterSettings { WriteIndent = true, Indent = true, NewLineChars = Environment.NewLine, Encoding = Encoding.UTF8 })); return sb.ToString(); } XmlSerializer public
